Hi Jessica,

thanks for your email.
In response to your survey:

Having reviewed your factsheet and associated information I have researched, I am currently undecided in the matter. We must continue to support and find ways to increase conservation. Unfortunately with the continued growing population and industry/business activity in Toronto, our power needs will continue to grow and outpace the rate of conservation. A local solution for downtown power needs is ideal, to eliminate the need for high voltage power lines crossing the city. One items I would like more information on is the possible use of cleaner incineration technologies which can provide power and eliminate cross border or mine gargage disposal.
